Books that never grow old

By FLORENCE ROBBINS

Pass Christian

It was a bit startling one morning to hear a news commentator exclaim that current favorites among juvenile readers were Nancy Drew and the Hardy Boys series, books which their parents were reading 30 years ago!

This only goes to prove that good children's books never grow old but are eagerly read by each succeeding generation.

These are some of the books read by great grandparents: LITTLE WOMEN - Louisa May Alcott - 1867 (one writer calls this "an immortal American story")

THE JUNGLE BOOKS - Rudyard Kipling - 1895
TALE OF PETER RABBIT - Beatrix Fairfax Potter - 1909
THE SECRET GARDEN - Frances Hodgson Burnett - 1911

Our children still read them and to those of us who loved them one, two or three generations ago, childhood would seem incomplete without them.

Here are some of the books

Navy Seaman Recruit Lisa G. Morris, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bass of Route 1, Box 139, Long Beach, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Orlando, Fla.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

A 1977 graduate of Long Beach High School, she joined the Navy in November 1977.

our grandparents read: HEIDI - Tritten - 1938
THE LITTLE HOUSE SERIES - Laura Ingalls Wilder - 1935

Copies of these books get worn and battered with constant use and have to be replaced. There is waiting list demand for them even though the library has more than one copy of each volume.

MARY POPPINS - 1934
WINNIE THE POOH - A. A. Milne - 1926

It is fun to give a young mother a "read-it-yourself" Pooh book for her first grader and at the same time introduce her to Rabbit Hill by Robert Lawson. Lawson is also a distinguished artist. This book and its companion The Long Winter below animal stories, are also fine introductions to illustrators of note.

This is a point which makes many of the older children's books worth perusing. Norman Rockwell's "Tom Sawyer" illustrations, Andrew Wyeth - outstanding illustrators and artists are found in precious older editions. Of course, Beatrix Fairfax Potter's illustrations of Peter Rabbit and the A. A. Milne books illustrated by Shepard are the only pictures any generation would tolerate.

When we come to the mother's favorites we have such books as E. B. White's Charlotte's Web and Stuart Little and T. H. White's The Once and Future King. This is the book on which the musical "Camelot" is based.

In fact, many of these children's books have been made into movies, plays, musicals and television. Much of the reading of old favorites is no doubt promoted by the media. This is true of Nancy Drew and the Hardy Boys and Little House series. Currently Black Beauty is being featured on television. Can it possibly be over 60 years since this great grandmother wept copious tears over it?

DEATH KNOWS NO FAVORITES! The grim reaper visits the mansion as well as the cottage. It strikes the intellectual and the illiterate. It summons the young as well as the old. Physical death comes to all. Death brings heartache, sorrow, sadness, and separation. However, death for a born-again Christian is quite a different experience than for those who die without receiving Christ and salvation. Physical death for the believer in Christ is a friend. One is led through the rocky gorge to a higher and more blessed plateau. Death becomes a deliverer from the trials, thorns, and temptations of this life. "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God (the redeemed) to them who are the called according to this purpose" (Rom. 8:28).

Death has other scriptural context. There is spiritual death, a tragedy in the midst of human experience often overlooked.

"For the wages of sin is death..." (Rom. 6:23). "And sin, when it is finished bringeth forth death" (James 1:15).

Death is a separation in every sense. Spiritual death is a separation from God who is life, the creator of life, the provider, sustainer, and redeemer of life.

The person out of Christ (the unsaved) is said to be "dead in trespasses and sins," (Eph. 2:1, 5).

There is yet another death mentioned in the Bible. It is eternal death. This comes to those who are dead spiritually and die physically. Their lot is eternal punishment, being everlastingly separated from God's love and mercy. "And death and hell (hades) were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:10-15).

The only escape is through Him who overcame death, and bath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel" (II Tim. 1:10).

"Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world and DEATH BY SIN: AND SO DEATH PASSED UPON ALL MEN, FOR THAT ALL HAVE SINNED" (Rom. 5:12). "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (I Cor. 15:22).

Yes, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23). — L.S. Walker.

AQHA states horse ownership on rise

One out of every five Americans has had some experience in owning a horse, according to a recent Gallup Survey. And another 13 percent of the American population would like to own a horse.

The survey was conducted in mid-October as part of Gallup's bimonthly surveys of public attitudes and opinions. It was sponsored by the American Quarter Horse Association (AQHA), Amarillo, Texas, the nation's largest equine registry.

Four percent of the population currently owns a horse, while 17 percent have owned horses in the past, the survey found.

The most popular horse in terms of breed is the American Quarter Horse with four percent of the population having owned or currently owning a Quarter Horse.

Horse ownership is most common among residents of small towns and rural areas, and residents of the western United States, the survey showed.

But among the non-horse-owning public, those most interested in purchasing a horse are residents of middle sized cities, individuals in professional and business occupations, members of the $10,000 to $20,000 income category, and individuals with a college education.

"The role of the horse in today's society is much different than it was two generations ago," noted Albert Becker of Kansas City, Kansas, AQHA President. "The horse is now a source of recreation and pleasure, in addition to being a full-fledged business for thousands of people, and represents more than a $13 billion contribution to the nation's economy."

When non-horse owners were asked what kept them from purchasing a horse, lack of facilities to keep a horse and living in the city were at the top of the list. Expense of owning a horse was the third most mentioned.

"The potential exists to triple horse ownership in this country," Becker said. "The horse industry must be watchful of zoning restrictions on the local government level and land use and planning on the national level. Also, we must encourage the development of trails and bridle paths in our parks and recreation facilities."

Concerning the cost of owning a horse, Becker said it cost no more to own and keep a horse than the expense involved in many other hobbies.

"Purchasing a horse is like purchasing a car. There are many types available," Becker said. He stated that prices for horses generally range from $300 to several thousand, depending on the horse.

The American Quarter Horse Association was founded in 1940 to officially register and keep records on Quarter Horses. Only 1,000 horses were registered in 1941. During 1977, nearly 100,000 were registered and more than 180,000 went to new owners. All told, 1.3 million Quarter Horses have been registered since 1940.

Do we need a youth center?

This is the question Bay St. Louis Jaycees want answered. For several months the Jaycees have been trying to locate property to construct a meeting hall and youth center.

Whenever a piece of property is located, the residents in the immediate area object to a youth center in the neighborhood. Most folks who object to a youth center in their neighborhood, we are told, felt it is a good idea - for somewhere other than in their neighborhood.

To be honest, we do not know whether the residents of Bay St. Louis want a youth center, and the Jaycees would like to know.

We and the Bay St. Louis Jaycees would both like you to let us know your opinion with a letter addressed to The Sea Coast Echo, P. O. Box 230, Bay St. Louis, Ms. 39520, whether you want a youth center or not.

The Jaycees are a group of young men of our community between the ages of 21-40 who are interested in the youth of today, because they will be our leaders of tomorrow.

The Bay St. Louis Jaycees were re-chartered last fall with 23 members. They now have 49 members with No. 50 to be accepted next meeting.

Now a meeting place is something else, without the conference room of Gulf National Bank which they outgrew, the civil defense office where they now meet, the Jaycees would probably have to meet on the street.

Every cent the local Jaycee organization raises is spent on community action programs. They gave 25 baskets of food to the needy at Christmas, put on a party for the exceptional children of Silver Creek School, and have executed other worthy community projects in their short term of re-activation.

The Bay St. Louis Jaycees have the plans ready for a meeting hall and youth center. The thing they need is a reasonably priced piece of property in or adjacent to Bay St. Louis - one where the neighbors won't object.

If you have such a piece of property, call Jaycee president Teddy Bilbo, 255-1133, evenings 467-4733, or vice-president Wayne Ducomb, Jr., 467-6697.

Washington report

By Trent Lott

THE PRESIDENT'S FIRST BUDGET

You better sit down for this one. The President has submitted to Congress the first budget proposal ever to soar past the half-trillion dollar mark.

That's right, and it may come as a surprise to those who believed the President's first budget would reveal sharp reductions in federal spending. The voluminous proposal seeks federal expenditures in Fiscal Year 1979 of $500.2 billion.

About the only thing that exceeds the budget request is the national debt, which already stands at about three-quarters of a trillion dollars and, under the President's plan, would be increased by $60.6 billion. You can rest assured that no President has ever gotten through Congress everything he asks for, and this should be no exception.

The budget proposal indicates that the government will continue throwing billions of federal dollars at so-called "people's programs." I only hope that somewhere in the jungle a few dollars will be available to see to it that these funds are carefully audited and properly spent.

The budget shows a slight two-percent increase in defense spending, most of it - 55 percent - allocated not for military hardware but for salaries, pensions and the like. The $126 billion total defense proposal still does not address the question of what direction Navy shipbuilding will take because, he said, he is waiting for completion of a study on the matter.

The Fiscal Year 1979 budget calls for about $42 billion to be used for construction of 14 new ships, including an attack submarine, eight frigates, three towed-array sonar ships and two auxiliary ships.

Other key portions of the budget include the following:

-Energy - An increase of $1.8 billion, or 22.9 percent, mostly to cover the cost of the President's energy conservation program, fossil fuel research and a major shift away from earlier emphasis on nuclear reactors;

-Foreign aid - A sharp 23 percent increase in budget authority for foreign assistance, mostly to support aid to needy nations through the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank;

-Education - A $1.4 billion increase in education spending, to $12 billion, mostly to cover increased federal aid to the disadvantaged and handicapped and for new scholarships for middle class college students he thinks will head off pressure for a college tuition tax credit;

-Cities - A new aid plan was pledged, but the details and the price tag were postponed until later this spring. Some observers expect a modest program, built primarily around loan guarantees to New York and other hard-pressed cities.

The President has referred to his first budget proposal as "lean and tight." What shape it will be in after congressional consideration, however, remains to be seen.

The Peoples Business

FOUR BILLION FEDERAL DOLLAR

Many people have often wondered about how many federal dollars Mississippi receives each year.

The answer to that question is four billion - about $1.75 for each dollar we send to Washington.

The Mississippi Economic Council is releasing an almost 400-page report which details the distribution on those billions of dollars of federal money. The report gives a county-by-county breakdown of federal funds distribution. It is the first such compilation of those facts and figures.

Those funds make a strong impact on the state. Many programs on the county, city and state levels are funded through federal money. The administration of those funds should be smooth and efficient, to assure that the maximum percentage is spent on the program's purpose.

In making the study, the Council reached several conclusions about the management of these funds. The conclusions included the following:

- A general lack of direction on the federal level contributes to the confusion at the state and local levels.

- Increased attention should be given to the management, distribution, and accountability of federal funds at every level.

- Reporting procedures should be standardized and given higher priority $739,312 in 1976 and $680,339 in 1975.

Waveland's $1.8 million 1977 total was based on issuance of 174 permits, while in Long Beach where 174 permits were also issued during the year, the dollar value is listed at almost $3.2 million.

Harrison County issued 1,622 permits in 1977 with a reported value of more than $44 million, up from almost $27.2 million in 1976 and $20.2 million in 1975.

Permits valued at almost $13.7 million were issued last year in Jackson County, compared to $11.9 million in 1976 and $9.7 million in 1975.

In 1977, according to the MRDC report, Bay St. Louis issued 34 residential permits valued at $1,011,291; eight commercial permits valued at $266,000; and 90 permits for alterations, additions and repairs valued at $320,656, or a total of 132 permits on construction with a reported value of $1,597,947.

A breakdown of the Waveland totals, on the other hand, shows 34 residential permits issued for $1,165,787; six commercial permits for work valued at $174,000; three public projects valued at $90,000; and 131 permits for alterations, additions and repairs valued at $346,853 or a total of 174 at $1,776,640.

In Long Beach, 72 residential permits were issued for work with a reported value of $2,538,153 in 1977; three commercial permits with a value of $221,000; and 99 permits for alterations, additions and repairs valued at $390,720, or a total of 174 valued at $3,149,873.

Pass Christian issued no public or commercial permits in 1977. Residential permits issued in that city last year carried a reported value on the work of $1,685,872; and 39 permits for alterations, additions and repairs were valued at $299,742, or a total of 66 permits issued during the year on construction valued at $1,985,614.

The Pass Christian figures, however, are for the first 11 months of 1977 only, MRDC said, since data for December is not yet available.

Statistics for December, 1977, show Waveland issuing 19 permits for work valued at $403,073; Bay St. Louis issuing 11 permits for work valued at $234,800; Long Beach issuing 10 permits for work valued at $309,174; and Harrison County issuing 54 permits for work valued at $1,666,900.

No data was available for December from Hancock County's unincorporated areas, the MRDC report showed.

The State Employment Service reported the civilian labor force in its tri-county metropolitan statistical area continued to show improvement.

Unemployment was down 240 from November, and the number of employed wage and salaried residents rose by 500, the service reported.

The 6.8 percent tri-county area unemployment rate compares with a Mississippi rate of 5.7 percent and six percent national rate of joblessness.

The SES said completion of contracts on some major commercial and public buildings was the primary cause of the large number of unemployment benefits claimants from the construction industry in December.

Major retail variety type store closures contributed to a heavy claims load against the trade industry, the service reported, while seasonal layoffs which are usual for the tourist oriented hotel-motel trade accounted for a high rate of claims from the service industry.

Some 57,760 persons were employed in the area during December, with another 4,240 unemployed bringing the total civilian labor force to 62,020, the service said.

by the Governor's office.

The priorities and goals of each federal program should be monitored on the state level with a review process to eliminate duplication of effort.

A centralized source of standard information and data should be maintained on the state level.

ORGANIZING THE SOUTH

The United States Senate is expected to act soon on a bill which will make organizing of unions in southern plants much easier.

That bill - called the "Labor Reform Act" - is a grab by the unions for more members in the South, an area where most organizing efforts have been rejected by workers. A similar bill was passed by the House in 1977, but was not acted on by the Senate.

Union membership has been declining in recent years. In fact, it declined by some 767,000 workers between 1974 and 1976. Now less than 20 percent of the American workforce belongs to a union.

Combine the union organizing difficulties, the declining membership, and recent legislative setbacks and you have a picture of organized labor in dire straits. The proposed legislation is an effort to move unions back to their "good old days."

The bill would allow unions to request elections by giving only 15-days' notice. Currently the average time between requests and an election is 44 days, which seems expeditious enough. But under the proposed law union organizers would be able to enlist the support of workers secretly and demand an election whenever the timing best suited them.

The measure is unfair in other ways. If any employer resists unreasonable wage demands, the government could step in and impose wage terms. Imagine the cost to small business if federal authorities were to fix the wages that an employer was forced to pay.

Perhaps this "power grab" by the labor unions is one of the reasons a recent poll showed a majority of Americans believe unions are too powerful.

Copeland gang, the scourge of Hancock

by S. Grady Thigpen, historian

Probably the most notorious and the worst of all the robber gangs ever to operate in south Mississippi was the Copeland gang.

Back in the old days before there were banks in which people could deposit their money they had to keep their money themselves, in their own homes or hide it in nearby locations. Even after banks were in most localities many people were afraid of them as they did not then have the deposit guarantees we now have. Since I have lived in Poycune an old man a few miles out sold his place. He moved out one morning while the people he had sold to were moving in. A member of the family moving to this old place said the old gentlemen took a shovel, went into the smokehouse and in the presence of the new owners, dug up his money. While most of us do not realize it, banks are comparatively new in the lives of the people.

Because people did keep their money in their homes, robber gangs often went to peoples homes, and robbed them if they were reported to have money. James Copeland joined one of these gangs while a young man.

After Copeland was tried and convicted for the murder of James A. Harvey and while waiting in the jail at old Augusta for the day of his execution, he dictated a confession of all his crimes to Dr. J.R.S. Pitts, then Sheriff of Perry County.

In his confession Copeland told of many robberies and murders in which he took part as a member of the gang. He first started out stealing his neighbor's cattle and hogs. When he first got into trouble, he took part with others in the burning of a courthouse over in Alabama to destroy all evidence against him and his gang.

From then on, according to his confession, he occupied his time in theft, murder and the burning of homes that he had helped to rob. When things got too hot for him and his gang in one area they would move to another and keep up their lawless activities. He confessed to robberies and murders in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas and even went as far away as Ohio.

Members of this gang often hid out around Gainesville, Pearlinton, Honey Island and along Catahoula Creek. One member of the gang pretending to be a preacher as a cover up for his criminal activities stayed in Gainesville for a whole year at one time and preached regularly while there.

In the course of their operations three members of this gang, including Copeland, had come into possession of a big amount of money, most of which was deposited in New Orleans. In order to get their money into their own possession the head of the gang went to New Orleans and bought five barrels of whiskey. He got all the money in gold and placed it in long slim canvas bags made for the purpose and which he would pass through the bung hole of a barrel. He passed all the money into one of the barrels. He then put the bung in real tight and nailed the tin over it to hold it in place. He shipped the barrels by boat while taking passage on this same boat himself.

After reaching its destination the barrel with the money in it was hauled to a hide-out of the gang and opened. They also had bank notes and other negotiable paper which they exchanged for gold in Mobile. All this money was first hidden over near Mobile while the gang continued their criminal activities. The members of the gang then scattered out to avoid detection, one of them spending the year 1844 in Pearlinton. About a year later through a prearranged plan the gang met again in Mobile. Here they found out that certain persons had gotten on to their activities, and were talking too much about it.

When things got too hot for them around Mobile the robbers decided to move their money over into the area east of where Poycune now stands on Catahoula Creek and they themselves scatter over this section. Many references are made to Gainesville, Pearlinton, Honey Island, Hancock County and Catahoula Creek in the Copeland confession.

The head of the gang came over into Hancock County and built a home on Catahoula Creek. To move the money over into this area they loaded three kegs with the money on a wagon which they covered with household goods. Each one of the three robbers got a map showing the location of the hidden money on the banks of Catahoula Creek. Two of the robbers were later killed by Harvey and Copeland lost his map in the battle in which Harvey was killed. So far as anyone knows this money has never been found. Copeland's confession telling of the burial of this money set off a hunt for this gold that began over 100 years ago, and which, as you can see for yourself, is still going on as there are many places along Catahoula where people have dug for this gold.

One of the Copeland gang sold his farm up in Perry County to James A. Harvey, telling him that he had a patent for the land and owned it. Harvey paid him all the purchase price except $40 and gave him a note for that. Harvey then found the man did not own the land. This man sold Harvey's note to two other members of the gang. On a trip up that way these two men went to Harvey to collect the note. Harvey at first refused to pay the note, telling the men that he had bought land the seller did not own. They demanded the money anyway and threatened Harvey unless he paid it. They had the advantage so Harvey told them that he did not have the money but that he would get out and try to borrow it and settle with them if they would come by the next morning. When they came back Harvey shouted to them that he would not pay because he did not owe it and because he did not have that much money. They threatened him again and started toward the house. Harvey put his hat on the end of his gun barrel and held it just above a hedge where they could see it. They shot his hat off the gun barrel. Harvey then shot and killed one of them and wounded the other so that he died.

When the rest of the gang heard what had happened, the parents of one of the dead men offered Copeland $1000 if he would kill Harvey. Copeland, with three other men, went to Harvey's place to kill him but he had moved to another place nearby. The gangsters found a good crop growing on the place and they saw signs that someone was coming to the place regularly, probably daily. They decided to stay in the vacant house and wait for Harvey to come. They kept a watchman out so they would not be surprised. Harvey did not come the first day. The gangsters got hungry and ate peaches, figs and other fruit they found on the place. Late in the day they got so hungry they built a fire in the fireplace and roasted some roasting ear corn for food. Some of them warned against building the fire as the smoke might warn Harvey but their hunger got the best of them. As it turned out the smoke

BROILER-TYPE

Hatcheries in the state set 5,918,000 eggs for broiler chicks during the week ending Jan. 28, one percent above the previous week and 11 percent above the 5,350,000 set the corresponding week a year ago.

There were 5,253,000 broiler chicks placed on Mississippi farms during the week ending January 28, 1978, 3 percent below the previous week but 3 percent above the 5,085,000 placed the corresponding week a year ago.

Cumulative placements for 1978 are 21,186,000 broiler chicks—5 percent above a year earlier.

Hatcheries in the state set 346,000 eggs for egg-type chicks during the week ending Jan. 28, 11 percent below the previous week and three percent below the 358,000 set during the comparable week a year ago. Hatch of egg-type chicks was 279,000—73 percent above the previous week but 5 percent below the 294,000 hatched during the comparable week a year ago.

In the five states that accounted for about 25 percent of the hatch of all egg-type chicks in the U.S. in 1976, settings during the week ending Jan. 28, were down four percent but hatchings were up ten percent from a year ago.

LAYERS

Mississippi's 7,756,000 layers produced 157 million eggs in Dec. 1977, according to the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is six million above the 142 million produced in December 1976.

EMERGENCY LIVESTOCK FEED
County agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committees now have the authority to implement the emergency livestock feed program provided under the 1977 farm bill. This program provides assistance to livestock producers who have lost at least 40 percent of the feed normally produced on their farms because of a natural disaster. Eligible producers may be reimbursed for up to 50 percent of the cost of feed purchased for their livestock.

If you suffered a substantial loss of livestock feed because of a natural disaster during the current crop year, you may file an application for emergency livestock feed assistance at your county ASCS office. January 31 is the final date for filing during the current crop year.

NEW SOYBEAN VARIETY

With the release of Bedford, a new soybean variety, comes the first soybean variety having resistance to both Race 3 and 4 of the soybean cyst nematode. Dr. E. E. Hartwig and James Epps, both USDA scientists, are responsible for developing the new variety. Only a few Mississippi fields have Race 4 cyst nematode problems. Consequently, the seed increase of Bedford was low in 1977. Significant quantities of Bedford will not be available in Mississippi until 1979.

CALF FEED

Feeding fermented colostrum can reduce the cost of calf raising. Calves may be started on fresh or fermented colostrum immediately after birth. It's usually recommended that calves be given fresh colostrum the first two or three days and then switched to fermented colostrum. It's also important to start calves on grain as soon as possible, preferably a 20 percent crude protein calf

CHILDREN'S CLOTHING

Selecting or making children's clothing is sometimes a frustrating experience. These clothes require fasteners which are easy for children to handle. Buttons, hooks and eyes, snaps, lacing and buckles often provide obstacles to small hands.

One way to solve this problem is to buy or sew clothing which fastens with zippers, polyester hook and nylon loop closures or self-sticking fabric tape. These kinds of closures allow for easy dressing and reduce children's frustration when they are learning to dress themselves.

Coveralls and jumpsuits are easy to sew and comfortable, especially for preschoolers. To make them easy to get into, sew a zipper down the front of the garment, instead of the back. Keep in mind that any clothing which has closures in the front will be easier for children to handle than garments with back closures. A metal or plastic ring, short cord, fabric flower trim, or applique attached to the zipper will make it easier to grasp. Wraparound skirts with easy-to-use closures are more convenient than other kinds of skirts for young girls.

When buying or making clothing, it is a good idea to plan a color coordinated wardrobe. In this way, almost any articles a child pulls out to wear will look good together. When selecting clothing, keep a child's activity and age in mind, a hard wearing polyester or polyester cotton is a good choice.

Consider using a "Wipe clean" fabric, such as a vinyl or vinyl-like fabric for messy playtimes. A smock of this fabric may be helpful when a child is eating; or playing with such items as finger paints.

Adding detachable bibs, collars or turtle-neck dummies to your children's clothing creates variety and versatility in their wardrobes.

When sewing your children's clothes, be sure to keep leftover fabric. You may be able to use it to lengthen hem or pantlegs. Putting tucks into garments allows for extra room as your children grow. To keep homemade items looking neat and professional, refrain from putting in hems that are too big or very deep cuffs. Buying clothing that has width in hems or seams is a good idea. Finally, begin to teach your children proper care of their clothing when they are young. When putting away and washing clothing, closures should be zipped or gripped together to keep their shape. With the cost of clothing today, it is certainly wise to make you children's clothing last as long as possible.

FARMERS AND ANTITRUST

In a free nation, relatively speaking, it is rather easy to overlook the other face of our oftentimes overly beneficent government to our belated regret.

While on the one hand our form of government gives certain freedoms and opportunities, it uses the other hand to exercise necessary restraints for the well being of all citizens.

A timely example of this governmental virtue is coming to the fore these days amidst the farm foment brought on as some farmers caught in the high cost-low price squeeze would follow the labor union pattern of demanding higher wages and take intemperate steps to obtain them.

Yet there is a basic difference between the price demands of labor and farmers that the government has carefully written into law subject to stringent enforcement. Briefly put, government tolerates labor strikes but not farm strikes if they are monopolistic or in restraint of trade.

Foundational of this philosophy by the government is the precedent set years ago through antitrust legislation that provided exemption for labor from antitrust laws ostensibly for the reason spelled out in the law that the labor of a human being is not a commodity or an article of commerce.

So, unless farmers barter for hourly wages they are not in the same ball game as labor and go by a different set of rules. By the same but inverse token, labor is not immune from monopolistic practices or trade restraints when applied to the things they produce by their labor.

To carry the contrast to the bitter end, a laborer has the government's blessing to walk off the job, unless the public good is in serious jeopardy and then the government can force him to return through the Taft-Hartley Act. A farmer has to be very cautious because the crops he produces in both fresh and processed stages become involved in intra-state and foreign trade channels.

If the farmer, as an individual or as a member of an association or group, participates in a trade practice that a federal court would deem monopolistic or in restraint of trade, he might well end up in the cooler for a period of up to a year and-or be fined up to $50,000 for the caper.

Or, if that isn't warning enough, there is another federal statute which prohibits associations of farmers from monopolizing or restraining of trade and unduly enhancing prices. Through its provisions, if the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture has reason to believe that any association monopolizes or restrains trade in interstate or foreign commerce to such an extent that the price of any agricultural product is unduly enhanced, then he shall serve on the association a complaint stating his charge and calling for a hearing within 30 days.

This action would force the association to show cause why a cease and desist order would not be issued. If the agricultural association failed or neglected to obey the order for 30 days it may be called into Federal Court. Then, after the Secretary presented evidence to support his case, he may issue a permanent injunction or other appropriate remedy.

These are the laws of the land and until they are amended or revoked it would behoove all citizens to remember them. Defiance of federal laws has never ended up as a very agreeable exercise.

State Weather Projection

Mississippi's February weather outlook calls for below normal temperatures, according to the National Weather Service Outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service (MCES).

Freezing temperatures are likely in the northern two-thirds of the state on more than one-half of the mornings and in the remainder of the state on one-fourth to one-third of the days. Maximum temperatures should average in the 50's with only a few days reaching into the 60's, report agrometeorologists at the Environmental Studies Service Center in Stoneville, who prepare the forecasts.

Above median rainfall is forecast for the southeast portion of the state, where totals may exceed five inches; in other areas, monthly totals will range from four to five inches.

Agrometeorologists caution poultrymen that February will continue to place a strain on heating systems. Poultrymen will require higher-than-usual amounts of fuel to keep poultry houses warm and dry.

Cold stress will be a frequent problem for livestock. Hay and other supplements will be needed. Wheat and ryegrass pastures can be severely damaged if grazed during bad weather, says Dr. Hiram Palmertree, MCES agronomist.

Below median rainfall may improve chances of doing field work in February. Farmers should try to catch the beginning of a warming trend to fertilize pastures and winter grain, say weather experts.

'GETTING THINGS DONE'
A Guide To Effective Time Management - Do you have trouble managing your time?
Are you sometimes overrun with paper work? Do you find you can't delegate responsibility? Or make quick, effective decisions? Do you swear you'll get organized - tomorrow?

The time is now and the solution is here in Getting Things Done by Edwin C.
Bliss, a no-nonsense guide to gaining control of your time and making the fullest use of it
- at the office, at home or in school. Subtitled "The ABC's of Time Management," it will be published in Bantam paperback in January.

According to author Bliss, a management consultant, few people actually waste time;
they just don't use it properly.
Work is not delegated, days aren't scheduled, decisions aren't made, priorities aren't established. To help postponers and workaholics alike overcome these pitfalls and get the maximum benefit from the minimum investment of their time, Bliss offers a treasury of direct effective advice on everything from cutting your paper work in half, meeting deadlines and overcoming mental blocks, to making lists, dealing with interruptions, establishing goals, making effective decisions, changing your sleeping habits and eliminating procrastination - the No. 1 time-killer.

For time-saving reading.
Getting Things Done is organized in short alphabetical sections, which,
through examples, anecdotes, and clear, helpful hints cover all the areas that affect one's use of time, such as: alcohol, bottlenecks, clutter, concentration, delegation, fear, files, indecision, perfectionism, weekends, wheel-spinning - and many, many more. The book is illustrated throughout with lively drawings by Mal, and includes self-quizzes and check lists.

A former newspaper
executive, Edwin C. Bliss served as an administrative

Answer to Puzzle

CLUTTER

Whenever you find your desk becoming chaotic, take time out to reorganize. Make a single pile of all your papers, then go through them (making generous use of your wastebasket) and divide them into categories:

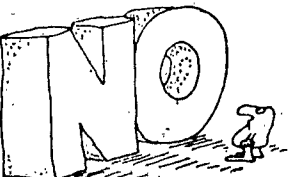

1. Immediate action
2. Low priority
3. Pending
4. Reading material

PAPERWORK

Examine the paper work in your own office and see if every report, every multiple copy, every questionnaire, every file, really justifies the time and energy it requires. Then apply Sir Simon's rule: if in doubt, throw it out!

Of all the time-saving techniques ever developed, perhaps the most effective is the frequent use of the word no.

You cannot protect your priorities unless you learn to decline, tactfully but firmly, every request that does not contribute to the achievement of your goals.

Surprising Jazz get longest NBA winning streak

The New Orleans Jazz, minus injured center Pete Maravich, stretched their winning streak to 10 games with a victory over the Chicago Bulls, 117-111, Wednesday in the Superdome.

Forward Truck Robinson, an NBA All-Star, paced the Jazz with 31 points, backed up by Aaron James with 20.

The Jazz fought their way back from a two point handicap at the end of the first, putting pressure on the Bulls to force expensive turnovers. Powerful defensive provided by center Rich Kelley and Paul Griffin held Chicago's Artis Gilmore to 25 points and nine rebounds.

The ten game streak for the Jazz is the longest in current NBA play. New Orleans, 26-24 travels on Tuesday to Cleveland.

MARAVICH INJURED

Jazz shooting star Pete Maravich injured his right knee in the final minutes of a New Orleans 114-95 victory over Buffalo in the Superdome Tuesday night. The team physician later described the injury as a "strain," but Maravich was unable to play in Wednesday's game against Chicago, and will be out of today's NBA All-Star games. The win over Buffalo gave the Jazz a 25-24 record and is the club's ninth victory in a row.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS

More than 400 students, including 20 teams from around Mississippi, will take part in the Mississippi Special Olympics State Basketball Tournament Feb. 10-11 in the Gulfport High School Gym and the Herbert Wilson Recreation Center.

JAZZ-ROCKETS NEED SELL-OUT

The Gulf Coast encounter between the New Orleans Jazz and the Houston Rockets, scheduled Feb. 12 in the Mississippi Coast Coliseum, has sold 6,000 of 10,000 available tickets. Club spokesmen have stated nothing less than a sell-out will be considered a success since the Jazz draw an average of 13,000 fans per game in the Superdome. The organization plans to donate three percent of the amount of ticket sales to the American Heart Association in memory of the late J. C. Speer.

LOOKING UP - St. Stanislaus Junior Varsity players Jones, 20, Labat, 21, and Domangue, 30, seem to be holding their breaths as a shot from under the basket by Buddy Comangue, 30, slowly tips into the net, in a preliminary game against Biloxi. The Indians B-team won, 76-35.

Rocks pulverized by Biloxi Indians

By SHARON WALLS

St. Stanislaus gave up a basketball victory, 91-60, against Biloxi, ranked sixth in the State, Thursday, in Brother Peter Memorial Gym.

With one minute remaining in the first quarter, the Biloxi Indians intercepted a full court pass which they made good for two points to give the Indians a 14 point advantage. Charlie Vincent retaliated with a net in the last twenty seconds to narrow the Biloxi lead, 24-12.

The quick Indians snatched a number of Stanislaus passes during the second period. These turn-overs cost the Rocks, but the smaller team kept hustling. Baskets from Vincent and Buddy Domangue helped Stanislaus come back from a 20 point deficit to within 15 points.

Despite the pressure from the Rocks' guards Kenny Blakes and David McDonald, Biloxi rolled up a 45-23 lead by the end of the first half. In the closing minutes of the second period, a Biloxi player injured his knee, but after a few moments was able to limp off the court. His injury was later described as a severe strain. Stanislaus took the tip from Jeffrey Wallace to Kerry Corr for two points on a tie-up late in the third to spark a Rock-a-chaw rally. As Biloxi tried to move the ball to their own goal, Vincent made a steal for two points. In the process, a Biloxi player fouled John Murphy sending him to the line for two Rock-a-chaw points. Cary Lang quickly contributed another basket, but when the third quarter ended, Biloxi had widened their lead to 25 points.

The Indians increased that to 31 points in the first minutes of the final set. Two points from Corr followed by two out of two from the line by Domangue trimmed the score to 78-51.

Four points from the line by Corr and another by Wallace gave the Rocks their final tally, while Biloxi also finished up with two free shots.

"Biloxi has a strong club," commented Rock-a-chaw Coach Bob Cuccaro. Their boys are big and they are quick. They were able to rebound their own shots and come back for another try."

Corr was lead shooter for St. Stanislaus with 24 points. Vincent and Wallace each netted eight.

The Rock-a-chaws made good on 18 out of 21 Biloxi fouls, while sending the Indians to the line 23 times for 21.

In a junior varsity contest preceding the varsity game, St. Stanislaus was brought down by strong Indian blocking to give Biloxi another victory, 76-35.

By SHARON WALLS

After a sluggish first quarter, the Pass Christian Pirates out-netted St. John, 69-62, Thursday in Gulfport.

The Pass Christian girls defeated St. John, 45-34.

St. John's boys took a strong, 16-8, first quarter lead, but the Pirates came to life in the second period, out-scoring the Eagles, 20-18, to shave St. John's margin to six.

Cullen Swanier blew open the second half with his strong outside shooting, complemented by 6'6" John Whittman's inside blocking. The Eagle's lead dwindled away as the Pirates held them to 28 points in the entire second half while Pass High netted 41.

Cullen Swanier lit the fire under the Pirates' comeback with 26 points, supported by 24 from Virgil Swanier. Whittman contributed 10.

The Lady Pirates and St. John's Lady Eagles had the contest tied up, 8 all, after the first quarter, but an 18 point explosion in the second set gave the win to Pass Christian.

With a 26-17 lead at the break, the Lady Pirates eased off, out-scoring St. John by only three points in the third quarter and allowing the Lady Eagles to sink 10 to their 9 in the last set.

Jackson is site of Junior Round-Up

The Mississippi Junior Round-Up will be held Monday through Thursday, Feb. 6-9, in conjunction with the 13th Annual Dixie National Livestock Show in Jackson at the State Fairgrounds.

Junior Breeding Show entries must be checked by 3 p.m. Monday, Feb. 6, according to Dr. Duane Tucker, livestock specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. The livestock office at the fairgrounds will be open from noon until 7 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 5, and from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday to receive and check registration forms.

All junior livestock must be in the barn by 11 a.m. on Monday to be eligible for the show.

The junior livestock judging contest will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the beef arena Monday. Senior 4-H members between the ages of 14 and 19 are eligible to participate.

A dairy judging contest for senior 4-H club members will begin at noon Monday. Contestants from each county may enter as a team or as individuals if there are not enough for a three-member team. Participants will be scored on their placement of the animals and the reasons they give for these placements.

Livestock contests begin with the sheep show at the judging arena Tuesday at 8 a.m. At 9 a.m. the dairy show will begin in the coliseum. At the conclusion of the dairy show, the Premier Dairy Exhibitor Award will be given.

"Probably the most coveted award of the dairy show, this award is presented to the exhibitor who accumulates the most points during the dairy show," said Gerald Taylor, extension dairy science specialist. "Champion and reserve champions will also be named for heifers and cows."

Also on Tuesday, beginning at 3 p.m., is the beef breeding show. According to Dr. Tucker, two rings will be run in the coliseum; about 350 entries are expected.

Scheduled for Wednesday are the steer show, beginning at 8 a.m. in the coliseum, and the hog show, beginning at 3 p.m. in the swine barn.

"One of the most popular events of Junior Round-Up is the sale of junior champions scheduled for noon Thursday," Dr. Tucker said.

"Last year the sale grossed more than $30,000. Many buyers pay a premium price to young owners, and then donate the animal to charity. The charitable organization can sell the animal again and use these funds," he concluded.

WEEK ENDING:
January 28, 1978

RELEASED:
January 30, 1978

WEATHER SUMMARY

It was about 11 degrees colder than usual for this time of the year over most of Mississippi during the week ending on the 27th. Reported extreme temperatures were 63 degrees at Gulfport on the 24th and 10 degrees at Ripley and Holly Springs on the 28th. A large portion of the northern two-thirds of the state received some snow on the 22nd, topped by the report of 5 inches at Columbus. Light amounts of snow fell again in the northern part of Mississippi late in the week. Merrill reported the greatest 24-hour rainfall with 3.54 inches on the 25th. The weekend was generally fair and cold until light snow, sleet, and freezing rain moved into the state on Sunday night.

CROP SUMMARY

Farmers' major activity was feeding and caring for livestock this past week. Farmers spent the rest of their time repairing machinery and planning for 1978.

Soil moisture supplies were surplus to excessive. An average of 0.2 days was suitable for fieldwork compared to 0.3 days last week.

and 1.2 days for the same week last year.

Winter wheat and oats were in poor to fair condition. Livestock was in fair condition. Hay and roughage feed supplies were adequate to short, with other feed grain supplies stored on farms short to adequate.

"COMMENTS"

TUNICA CO. "Heavy rains, sleet and snow has kept farm work at a standstill. Nearly 4 inches of precipitation has fallen during the past week."
DE SOTO CO. "We still have about 3 inches of snow on the ground from the winter storm on Jan. 25. All fieldwork other than feeding livestock is at a standstill. Farmers are planning 1978 crops."

CLAY CO. "Rain, sleet and snow earlier this week made feeding operations for cattlemen a miserable chore."

ADAMS CO. "Cold, wet weather has prevailed during most of the week. Winter pastures are not growing much, putting more pressure on hay and feed grain supplies."
HANCOCK CO. "Rains during week have slowed all farming activities to a standstill. Rice is eaten down with no growing weather. All farmers are having to supplement feeding program."
